FLEXILIGHT

TYPE 1589

This versatile lamp has a semi-rigid flexible tube and is ideal wherever a local beam of screened light is required. It will remain in any position in which it is placed.

Three models are available, all of which have a built-in switch, 12v—6w bulb with adjustable cowl, length of cable, anchor clip and fixing screws also provided. The 'Flexilight' is also offered in 6v and 24v.

FITTING INSTRUCTIONS

All models are supplied with alternative fixing screws — two No. 6 self-tapping screws for fixing to metal panels and two standard 4 B.A. nuts and screws for use on other panels.

The position for the base should be chosen so that when in use the first few inches of the flexible tube remains straight. This is most important in ensuring stability of the lamp.

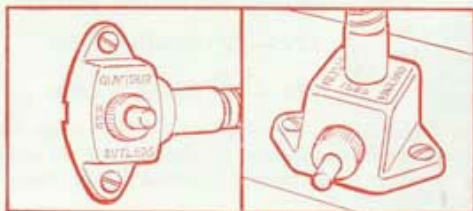

A clip is provided to anchor the head of the interior lamp when not in use. For the Inspection Model two clips are supplied.

CONNECTING UP The red wire should be run by a convenient path to the fuse unit terminal or control box. The black wire should be earthed to the nearest metalwork, although it may be dispensed with when the lamp is fitted to a metal panel provided the base is itself efficiently earthed.

FIXING METHODS

The diagrams below show the alternative base fitting for either horizontal or vertical mounting.
